Two Design Exhibits Worth Exploring

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN GALLERIES at the INDIANAPOLIS MUSEUM OF ART

After a three-year, multiphase renovation project, the new contemporary design galleries at the Indianapolis Museum of Art debuts November 21. More than 400 works of art, spanning nearly 10,000 square feet, will be unveiled as part of the IMA's permanent collection. As one of the largest displays of contemporary design in any North American art museum and among the first surveys of recent trends in this dynamic field, the installation is something to celebrate. For more details, visit imamuseum.org.

FEARLESS FURNITURE at the INDIANA STATE MUSEUM

Described as daring and diverse, Fearless Furniture opened in October at the Indiana State Museum. The first juried show of its kind, the exhibit features work from 21 of Indiana's best studio furniture makers. The exhibit runs through May 27, 2014. For more details, visit indianamuseum.org.

"The show illustrates not only the immensely diverse talent associated with our state, but also the artists' fearless approaches to making a living from something they love doing."

- David Buchanan, Decorative Arts and Furniture Curator, Indiana State Museum

TEXTILE TRENDS: LATTICE PRINTS ARE A MODERN CLASSIC

When you want a look that's current and fresh, but need something that will stand the test of time, consider incorporating a lattice pattern into your home décor. "Lattice is a great way to make a room look modern and hip. At the same time, the strong geometric print won't look dated in a few years," says Caryn O'Sullivan, Owner, Drapery Street Design Boutique. If you've fallen in love with this modern classic, schedule a design consultation or stop by Drapery Street's studio at the Indiana Design Center to find out how to best use it in your home.

Drapery Street is located on the first floor (suite 109) at the Indiana Design Center and is open to the public.
